ENTRÉE
INTERDITE

A photograph of the entrance to the Ghermanez fountain. The structure is a cylindrical tower made of red brick with two vertical concrete pillars. A stone coat of arms is mounted on the brick wall above an arched opening. The scene is set against a clear blue sky with bare trees in the background.

Entrée de la fontaine de Ghermanez

en sous-sol de l'usine

A photograph showing a deep view into a tunnel. The tunnel walls are made of concrete and are painted a yellowish-brown color. The floor is dark, and a stream of water flows through the center of the tunnel. The water is a vibrant green color, likely due to algae or other biological growth. The tunnel is illuminated from the left, creating a strong contrast between the bright walls and the dark water. The perspective is from a low angle, looking down the length of the tunnel.
